

Date: 1/22/15

Posted By: Huy Nguyen “Inspired by Simba the Lion King”

Title: The Lion Pride Tragedy

The purpose of this story is to change how we as humans think about animals as something important and precious instead mindless beasts that we can do what we want. Here is the story:

There was once a pride or family of lions that lived in the African Savannah. Life for this lion pride was fine. There was always food and water to satisfy the lions' needs. The litter of newborn cubs was under protection of the entire pride. However, there was a dark event that would change these cuddly and cute cubs' life forever. It was a couple of weeks after the cubs' birth, a band of poachers arrived to the pride's territory. When the poachers saw the lions, they lifted up their hunting rifles and shot down all of the adult lions. After the poachers finished the gruesome job, they started to move the bodies back to their tents. The frightened, hiding cubs were left behind without anyone protected or took care of them. These cubs' fate is now in the hands of the cruel nature. There weren't many possible fates for these little cubs at this point, they might reached their adulthood if they were lucky or they would lost their life when they came out of their hiding places. This story tells you as the audience that even the fierce animals like these lions have a beautiful thing called family and the poachers should not destroy it.

This is a big picture of importance of the carnivores such as lions: If there are no carnivores left, the herbivores with overwhelmed the environment. When there are so many herbivores, the will be no grass. When there are no grasses, the herbivores die and there will be sandstorms or dust storms. Finally, we will live on this planet alone with devastated disasters for our carelessness. I apologized for this story might upset you and thank you for you had read this story.