Title: Waterhole Restoration Project

This is my first blog post. My Zoo Crew classmates are studying the African Savanna and our Zoo Crew teachers are helping us to create projects to raise awareness about animals and the issues that affect them. I chose to focus on water hole restoration issues because it is really important for us to be aware of animals that don't have access to drinking water. Think about what you would feel like if water wasn't available to you.

Go look at this website: <http://www.maasaiassociation.org>. Besides helping the animals get to water, the Waterhole Restoration Project builds waterholes in hope of reducing human and wildlife conflict over shallow wells and holes.

This is important because we don't want people who live in the African savanna who have livestock like cows face lions. We want everyone in the African savanna to live safely and in a harmonious biome. Also, I want you to consider this a priority because there is not something more important than to have a quality life for you and for others.

In conclusion, I want to say this is a great opportunity for us to help this animals that do not have access to water and to have a lot of empathy for them. I invite you to share this important message.
