Rose pruning demonstration at Rose Garden at Woodland Park Zoo

*Roses are red,
Violets are blue,
Pruning these beauties
Helps them to bloom.*

WHAT: The Seattle Rose Society hosts its annual rose pruning demonstration at the Rose Garden at Woodland Park Zoo.

Learn where and how much to cut and how to use your tools properly for correct cuts, and discover the varieties of roses and pruning techniques. Gain insight into the world of roses and how to care for them, and get answers to your questions by rosarians.

The Rose Garden offers a splendid setting for flower lovers to stroll the grass pathways circulating through 2½ acres of rose displays. The garden's extensive array of bush roses, hybrid teas, floribundas, grandifloras, and climbers blend elegantly with the garden's formal architectural design to create a memorable showcase landscape. For information, visit <http://www.zoo.org/roses>.

WHEN: Saturday, February 24, noon to 3:00 p.m., rain or shine
Light refreshments

WHERE: Rose Garden at Woodland Park Zoo located at N. 50th St. & Fremont Ave. N.

COST: The demonstration and admission to the Rose Garden is free. Parking is $6, plus applicable state and local taxes, in the zoo's Hippo Lot at N. 50th St. & Fremont Ave. N.

INFO: For more information, call Woodland Park Zoo's lead rose gardener at 206.548.2635, or email the Rose Garden at rosegarden@zoo.org. For general zoo information, visit www.zoo.org or call 206.548.2500.

The Seattle Rose Society was started in 1913, making it the oldest horticultural society in the Seattle area. The Society has a roster of more than 200 active and enthusiastic members from all over Puget Sound, the Pacific Northwest and beyond. Members have a wide variety of interests in roses, including gardening, hybridizing, arranging and exhibiting roses. The Society was instrumental in the founding of the Woodland Park Rose Garden in 1924 with the help of the Lions Club.

Woodland Park Zoo is accredited by the Association of Zoos & Aquariums and certified by the rigorous American Humane Conservation program. The Humane Certified™ seal of approval is another important validation of the zoo's long-standing tradition of meeting the highest standards in animal welfare. Woodland Park Zoo is helping to save animals and their habitats through more than 35 field projects in the Pacific Northwest and around the world. By inspiring people to learn, care, and act, Woodland Park Zoo is making a difference in our planet's future ecological health and sustainability.
