“National Geographic Photo Ark” exhibition opens April 20 at Woodland Park Zoo

Outdoor exhibition showcases National Geographic photographer Joel Sartore’s work to document every species in zoos, aquariums and animal rescue centers

WHAT: Woodland Park Zoo will host the National Geographic exhibition, “National Geographic Photo Ark,” from April 20 through October 7. This exhibition is organized by the National Geographic Society and Omaha’s Henry Doorly Zoo and Aquarium.

The National Geographic Photo Ark is a multiyear effort to raise awareness of and find solutions to some of the most pressing issues affecting wildlife and their habitats. The Photo Ark’s three-pronged approach harnesses the power of National Geographic photography and the bold ideas of our explorers. Led by National Geographic photographer Joel Sartore, the project aims to document every species living in the world’s zoos and wildlife sanctuaries, inspire action through education and help save wildlife by supporting on-the-ground conservation efforts.

The National Geographic Photo Ark exhibition at Woodland Park Zoo will highlight 56 of the most compelling images from Sartore’s collection that includes more than 7,500 species. The exhibition will provide guests with the extraordinary opportunity to come face to face with animals from the National Geographic Photo Ark. The 8’ tall x 6’ wide portraits will be displayed across the zoo’s 92 botanical acres. A diversity of mammal, reptile, and bird species will be represented including animals currently living at the zoo such as Matschie’s tree kangaroo, Western pond turtle, Sumatran orangutan, snow leopard, pharaoh eagle-owl and greater one-horned rhino (new species coming to the zoo in May). Zoo guests will learn about the project, its mission, and Woodland Park Zoo’s conservation initiatives in the Pacific Northwest and around the world.

Sartore has worked in more than 250 zoos, aquariums and animal rescue centers around the world. He estimates the completed National Geographic Photo Ark will include portraits of more than 12,000 species representing several animal classes, including birds, fish, mammals, reptiles, amphibians and invertebrates. In what will be the largest single archive of studio-quality photographs of biodiversity ever, the National Geographic Photo Ark continues to move toward its goal of documenting these 12,000 species, thanks in part to Sartore’s enduring relationships with many of the world’s zoos and aquariums. These iconic portraits have captured the imagination of people around the world and have even been projected on the Empire State Building and St. Peter’s Basilica in Rome.
