

SNOWY OWL SPOTTING GAME

Snowy owls mainly live in the Arctic in open, treeless areas called tundra. They tend to make short flights, staying close to the ground, and will perch on the ground or on short posts to watch for prey. Their favorite target is lemmings, but they also hunt for other small rodents, rabbits, birds and fish. How many prey species can you spot in this owl's feathers?

MAKE YOUR OWN BEAR DEN

Better than a fort, make your own hibernation hide-away with these easy instructions.

WHAT YOU NEED:

- Four kitchen chairs or the back of a couch
- Full size (or larger) sheet, blanket or table cloth
- Pillows
- Clothes pins, chip clips, books or extra pillows
- Lamp or fairy lights and Stuffed Animals (Optional)

In a convenient and cozy location, position the backs of two kitchen chairs approximately four feet away from the backs of two more kitchen chairs so they form a set of “walls”.

Alternatively, move a couch so there is approximately four feet of clear space behind the back for your “den”.

Drape your sheet over the four chairs so the top is stretched taut. Secure your sheet to the top of the chair backs with clothes pins or chip clips, OR weight the loose fabric to the chair seats with extra pillows or a pile of books.

If using the couch, drape your sheet down the front of the couch, tucking it into the cushions and securing with pillows. Gently stretch the other end of the sheet away from the couch leaving some extra length to flip underneath. Securing with pillows within the “den” to provide extra height and volume.

Finally, make your “den” cozy with additional pillows, blankets and stuffed animals. If you have fairy lights or a lamp, set them up inside or near the den for a perfect hibernation hideaway!
