Periodic: A Pop-Up Shop hosts plant sale fundraiser for Woodland Park Zoo *It's a big dill: Amazon Horticulture Department donates 2,000 plants

WHAT: Seattle's Periodic: A Pop-Up Shop will host a plant sale to benefit Woodland Park Zoo. The Amazon Horticulture Department, through their Plants for Conservation program, will donate more than 2,000 tropical plants that represent more than 75 different species.

This will be the first time the plants are being made available to the public for purchase.

These plants were all expertly grown and cared for by the Amazon Horticulture staff at the Spheres support facility, which is home to more than 3,000 unique species of plants from around the world. Amazon Horticulture staff have created detailed plant care sheets and will be on site during the sale to answer questions.

The diverse selection of house plants, specialty plants and collector plants will include Anthurium, Begonia, Labisia, Monstera, Philodendron and Vanilla. Many of these plants are rarely available.

One hundred percent of the proceeds will help raise funds to support the zoo's Living Northwest Conservation Program. This program includes conservation efforts to help save regional amphibians, bats and raptors, western pond turtles, Northwest carnivores, Oregon silverspot butterflies, as well as efforts to enhance the ability for people to live side-by-side with wildlife.
